PREFACE

This report presents statistics on the number of inhabitants of the State, its counties, and minor civil divisions (townships, etc.). In addition, separate figures are also presented for urban places, wards of cities of 5,000 or more, and other areas of the State. These data are based upon tabulations from the Seventeenth Decennial Census of the population of the United States, its Territories, and possessions conducted as of April 1, 1950. Provision for the Seventeenth Decennial Census was made in the act providing for the Fifteenth and subsequent decennial censuses which was approved on June 18, 1929.

The major portion of the information compiled from the Census of Population of 1950 will appear in Volume I, Number of Inhabitants, and in Volume II, Characteristics of the Population. This report is a preprint of Chapter 34 (North Dakota) of Volume I, which is to present, in a single publication, statistics on the number of inhabitants for each State.

The materials presented here will also appear as Chapter A of Part 34 (North Dakota) of Volume II. Volume II will comprise a series of separately published parts, one for each State and a summary for the United States. The use of separate parts makes the basic materials on characteristics of the population for a given State available to the public in a single publication. Within the part for a State, Chapter A will recapitulate the statistics on the number and distribution of the population within a State; Chapter B will present statistics on the general characteristics of the population of the various political subdivisions of the State, such as counties, incorporated places, and the like; and Chapter C will present data on the detailed characteristics of the population of the larger areas within the State, such as cities of 100,000 inhabitants or more and standard metropolitan areas.

The materials presented here were prepared under the supervision of Howard G. Brunsman, Chief, Population and Housing Division, and Dr. Henry S. Shryock, Jr., Assistant Chief for Population Statistics, by Dr. Henry D. Sheldon, Chief, Demographic Statistics Section, and Charles P. Brinkman, Chief, Population Distribution Unit; the compilation of the statistics was under the direction of Robert B. Voight, Assistant Chief for Operations. The collection of the information on which these statistics are based was under the supervision of Lowell T. Galt, Chief, Field Division. The geographic work, including the delineation of special types of urban territory and the preparation of maps, was under the supervision of Clarence E. Batschelet, Chief, Geography Division.

NORTH DAKOTA

Number of Inhabitants

The State.—North Dakota was organized as a State with boundaries as at present from part of Dakota Territory and was admitted to the Union in 1889. Its population on April 1, 1950, according to the Seventeenth Census, was 619,636. The State has a land area of 70,057 square miles. In 1950 there was an average of 8.8 inhabitants per square mile as compared with an average of 9.2 in 1940. Among the States and the District of Columbia, North Dakota ranked forty-second in population and sixteenth in land area.

In 1870, the first year in which the Dakota Territory was enumerated by areas which can be grouped to produce the present area of the State, North Dakota had a population of 2,405 (table 1). In 1950, 80 years later, the population of the State was about 258 times as large. The rate of population growth was rapid in the nineteenth century and the first decade of the twentieth century. In the following two decades, the rate of growth was more moderate; and in the succeeding two decades the State lost population. The decline between 1940 and 1950 was 22,299, or 3.5 percent, as compared with a loss of 38,910, or 5.7 percent, for the previous decade. Oklahoma was the only other State which lost population in both of these decades.

Usual place of residence.—According to usual Census practice, which dates back to 1790, each person enumerated in the 1950 Census was counted as an inhabitant of his usual place of residence or usual place of abode, which is generally construed to mean the place where he lives and sleeps most of the time. This place is not necessarily the same as his legal residence, voting residence, or domicile, although, in the vast majority of cases, these different bases of classification would be identical.

In the application of this rule, persons were not always counted as residents of the places in which they happened to be found by the census enumerators. Persons in places where guests usually pay for quarters (hotels, etc.) were enumerated on the night of April 11, and those whose usual place of residence was elsewhere were allocated to their homes. Visitors found staying in private homes, however, were not ordinarily interviewed there. Information on persons away from their usual place of residence was obtained from other members of their families, landladies, etc. If an entire family was expected to be away during the whole period of the enumeration, information on it was obtained from neighbors. A matching process was used to eliminate duplicate reports for persons who reported for themselves while away and were also reported by their families at home.

Persons in the armed forces quartered on military installations were enumerated as residents of the States, counties, and minor civil divisions in which their installations were located. Members of their families were enumerated where they actually resided. In the 1950 Census, college students living away from home were considered residents of the communities in which they were residing while attending college, rather than as persons temporarily absent from their parental homes as was the practice in 1940. In 1950 the crews of vessels of the American Merchant Marine in harbors of the United States were counted as part of the population of the ports in which their vessels were berthed on April 1, 1950. In 1940 such persons were treated as part of the population of the port from which the vessel operated. Inmates of institutions, who ordinarily live there for long periods of time, were counted as inhabitants of the place in which the institution was located; whereas patients in general hospitals, who ordinarily have short stays, were counted at, or allocated to, their homes. All persons without a usual place of residence were counted where they were enumerated.

Urban and rural residence.—The 1950 urban population of North Dakota included 164,817 persons, or 26.6 percent of the population of the State (table 1). The urban population was living in the 13 urban places in the State. Nearly 40 percent of the urban population was concentrated in the two cities of more than 25,000 inhabitants, Fargo and Grand Forks (table 2).

North Dakota has always been a State with a preponderance of its population living in rural territory. In 1950, 73.4 percent of the population, or 454,819 persons, were classified as rural. Of the rural population, 69,670 persons, or 15.3 percent, were living in the 47 incorporated places of 1,000 to 2,500 inhabitants (table 2).

Urban definition.—Under the urban definition established for use in the 1950 Census, the urban population comprises all persons living in (a) places of 2,500 inhabitants or more incorporated as cities, boroughs, towns,¹ and villages; (b) the densely settled urban fringe, including both incorporated and unincorporated areas, around cities of 50,000 or more; and (c) unincorporated places of 2,500 inhabitants or more outside any urban fringe. The remaining population is classified as rural. According to the urban definition used in previous censuses, the urban population comprised all persons living in incorporated places of 2,500 inhabitants or more and areas (usually minor civil divisions) classified as urban under special rules relating to population size and density.

In both definitions, the most important component of the urban territory is the group of incorporated places having 2,500 inhabitants or more. A definition of urban territory restricted to such places, however, would exclude a number of equally large and densely settled places, merely because they were not incorporated places. Under the old definition, an effort was made to avoid some of the more obvious omissions by the inclusion of the places urban under special rules. Even with these rules, however, many large and closely built-up places were excluded from the urban territory. To improve the situation in the 1950 Census, the Bureau of the Census set up, in advance of enumeration, boundaries for urban-fringe areas around cities of 50,000 or more and for unincorporated places outside urban fringes. All the population residing in urban-fringe areas and in unincorporated places of 2,500 or more is classified as urban according to the 1950 definition. (Of course, the incorporated places of 2,500 or more are urban in their own right.) Consequently, the special rules of the old definition are no longer necessary.

Since there were no unincorporated places delineated in North Dakota, no urban-fringe areas, and no places urban under special rule according to the old definition, the distribution of the population of North Dakota by urban and rural residence is the same according to either definition.

Trends in urban and rural population.—The urban population of North Dakota rose from 23,413 in 1900 to 164,817 in 1950 (table 1). In contrast to the trend in total population, the urban population increased steadily in the 50-year period, with the largest numerical increase and rate of growth coming in the decade 1900 to 1910. The increase of 32,894 between 1940 and 1950 represented a gain of 24.9 percent over the 1940 urban population of 131,923. The proportion of the population classified as urban rose from 7.3 percent in 1900 to 26.6 percent in 1950.

The trend in the rural population parallels that for total population. The rural population rose from 295,733 in 1900 to a peak of 567,539 in 1930. The 1950 rural population was 55,193, or 10.8 percent, below the 1940 total of 510,012. Over the 50-year period, the proportion of the population classified as rural dropped from 92.7 to 73.4 percent.

Counties.—The 53 counties in North Dakota ranged in size from Billings with a population of 1,777 to Cass with a population of 58,877. Of the counties gaining population between 1940 and 1950, McLean, which had no urban population, experienced the most rapid rate of growth. Three additional counties, Burleigh, Cass, and Grand Forks, all predominantly urban, had increases in excess of 10 percent. These three counties were among the four counties which gained population in the decades 1930 to 1940 and 1940 to 1950. The fourth county was Stark, which gained 4.7 percent between 1940 and 1950.

Minor civil divisions.—To the primary political divisions into which counties are subdivided, the Bureau of the Census applies the general term "minor civil divisions." In North Dakota the minor civil divisions are the townships, cities, villages, and one town (Forman).

Table 6 shows statistics on the population of each county by minor civil divisions for the last three censuses. When an incorporated place lies in more than one county, the population of the several parts is shown in table 6 under the appropriate counties, and each part is designated by "part." Figures on the total population of such places are given in table 7. Changes between the 1940 and 1950 Censuses in the boundaries of areas listed are shown in notes to table 6. For changes in boundaries prior to the 1940 Census, see reports of the Sixteenth Census (1940), Population, Vol. I, pp. 795-803, and reports of earlier censuses.

Incorporated and unincorporated places.—North Dakota had 345 places incorporated as cities or villages and 1 place incorporated as a town. These places ranged in size from Wabek village with a population of 15 to Fargo city with a population of 38,256. There were 324,210 persons living in the 346 incorporated places and 159,393 in the 333 incorporated places with fewer than 2,500 inhabitants. There were no unincorporated places delineated in North Dakota.

Political units recognized as incorporated places in the 1950 Census are those which are incorporated as cities, boroughs, towns, and villages with the exception that towns are not recognized as incorporated places in the New England States, New York, and Wisconsin.

The Bureau of the Census has delineated boundaries for the thickly settled urban fringe around cities of 50,000 or more and has also delineated boundaries for unincorporated places of 1,000 or more which are densely settled population centers without corporate limits. Although there are unincorporated places within the urban fringe, it was not feasible to establish boundaries for such places and therefore they are not identified as separate places.

The count of urban places in the 1950 Census includes all incorporated places of 2,500 or more regardless of location and unincorporated places of 2,500 or more which are located outside the urban-fringe areas. Incorporated places of less than 2,500 which lie in the urban fringe are not recognized as urban places.
